Letter from the PVIA President

Hello Neighbors!

After the chilly February we had, I for one will welcome spring and warmer days. We have opportunities to plan some activities and love to hear your ideas at one of our upcoming meetings. When we work together we keep our neighborhood the fun, friendly, community we all want to live in.

-Roger

Trash Updates:

Trash and compost day every Wednesday

Recycle days: March 5, 19

Cold temperatures can affect both indoor and outdoor air quality.

As temperatures drop, carbon monoxide poisoning becomes a significant indoor winter hazard. Never use a gas stovetop or oven for heating.

Cold weather also affects outdoor air quality. Colder and drier winter air traps pollutants in Denver's skies. The outdoor burning of wood is prohibited in Denver without a permit, as it releases pollutants harmful to respiratory health and linked to other serious conditions. Propane, natural gas, and charcoal briquettes for grilling are allowed. You can also avoid unnecessary idling to reduce pollution, prevent theft, and extend your engine's life.

Protect our air by checking for Air Quality Action Day alerts to stay aware of indoor burning restrictions from November to March. And check out the Love My Air app!

THANK YOU to all the neighbors who were able to clear their sidewalks so quickly after the recent heavy snowfall. Whew - that was a lot of work.

Denver Snow Angels

Know someone who needs help shoveling snow or do you want to help neighbors in need of snow removal? The Denver Snow Angels Program connects community members needing assistance shoveling their front sidewalks, including adjacent ADA ramps and bus stops, with neighbors interested in helping.
